

The Press

  and  are  all  part of  the press.

 You  could  tell  the press  about  your  change.

 It is a good way  for lots of people  to see  and  hear about  your  change.

 These  are some  ideas  to  help  you.

1. Think about who you would like to tell.

Journalists turn your story into a news report or news article.

You can contact journalists online.

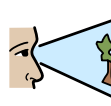

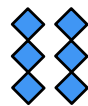

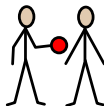

For a local issue, you might contact your local press.

For a bigger issue, you might contact your national press.

2. Research.

 Look  online  to see  if you can  find  similar  stories to  yours.

 Journalists  who have written  similar  stories  might  be interested  in yours.

3. Get important information to give to journalists.

 Tell  the journalist  the issue  you  want to  change.

 Tell  the journalist  why  the issue  is  important.

 Think about  places  the journalist  could  film.

4. Decide if you would like to be interviewed.

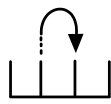

In an interview, you should talk about the main points.

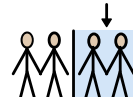

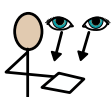

In an interview, say your story in a way that's easy to understand.

5. Think about what you will do next.

You could show the news story to other people.

 Sometimes,  the journalist  might  not  write  about or  film  your story.

 Don't  worry,  the journalist  might  have been  too  busy.

 Try again next time!
